

MAC table flooding attack (of the switch)

Definition: When an attacker connected to a switch port floods the switch interface with very large number of ethernet frames with different source MAC address, the limited memory inside switch's MAC table gets filled with those fake MAC address - interface mapping. So, it enters into fail-open mode & start behaving like network hub.

Topology:

